What is the Lifelong Learning Institute at Virginia Tech?

The Lifelong Learning Institute (LLI) at Virginia Tech is a member-driven, volunteer organization that draws on the wealth of academic and community resources in the New River Valley to provide intellectual, cultural, and social experiences for curious adults 50 and older.

LLI enjoys the strong support of the Division of Outreach and International Affairs and from the university community in general, which provides infrastructure (registration, website development, catalog design, office space, classrooms, current and retired faculty, and start-up funding) for the initiative. But LLI is first and foremost a member organization, run by a Board of Directors and a corps of dedicated volunteers committed to meeting the interests of its members throughout the New River Valley. We welcome your involvement and ideas!
Partnerships Make for Great Programming!

Each term the LLI catalog is filled with great courses and events that introduce you to new perspectives, unleash your creativity, and keep you connected to what’s happening locally, nationally, and in the world. We welcome a new partner this term – the historic Lyric Theatre, a community treasure and the “heart of Blacksburg.” The Lyric will host a film discussion every Monday at 12:15 p.m., following the 10:00 a.m. show, starting January 15 for 8 weeks. See the movie whenever you want, then join in this informal conversation about the movie of the week. Sign up for (free) Reel Talk: Mondays at the Lyric to get more information. The Lyric is also co-sponsoring our major spring special event on Saturday, April 7 – Ballads and Ballad Books: A Word and Music Performance with Author Sharyn McCrumb and Musician Jack Hinshelwood of the Crooked Road.

See all of our great community partners on the back cover of the catalog.

Staging the Conversation about End-of-Life Wishes

Each of us would like our life story to end on our own terms. Modern technological advances and hyper-medicalization of end-of-life (EOL) choices have made reaching that goal more complicated and, in some cases, elusive. Informed behavior and active conversation can provide an essential tool for us to increase the probability that we will live on our own terms to the end. This course seeks to encourage and empower participants by showing them how to conduct “big conversations” with their medical care team, family, and friends.

TOPICS

• Critically analyzing the status of end-of-life care in the U.S.
• Examining choices for EOL care.
• Understanding and developing a comprehensive advanced care plan.
• Creating a framework for conducting an ongoing conversation about EOL with family and the health care team.
• Understanding hospice and palliative care as empowering choices.

INSTRUCTORS

Anne Campbell spent 25 years of her nursing career as a women’s health nurse practitioner with Montgomery Obstetrics and Gynecology in Blacksburg. For the past 10 years, she has been deeply engaged in establishing a Hospice Care Center in the New River Valley.

Love and Sex After 50

Love and sex matter after 50! Science concurs with what our hearts, minds, and bodies know. Yet, how to navigate this unanticipated terrain of long-term relationships, lost and ended relationships, uncertain future relationships, all with the spoken and unspoken prospect of getting naked together? The setting for this unfolding drama? A small, rural, college town. If you feel overwhelmed, you’re not alone. This course will offer a dialectic of data-backed, reassuring, juicy guidance on possibilities for how to individually, and in partnership, feel loving and sexual your whole life.

February 13, 9:00 – 10:15 a.m.
Managing Implicit Bias

We all have bias—even those of us who are committed to equity and fairness. Often, our biases are implicit—meaning we aren’t aware that we have them until they are triggered by stress, fatigue, or surprise. Why does implicit bias persist? And how can we manage our biases so that our actions are better aligned with our espoused beliefs? This session helps participants understand how biases are formed, why they continue, and how we can replace them with better information. Participants will take the Implicit Association Test, as well as practice intervening when implicit bias enters the conversation.

Michele Deramo is Assistant Provost for Diversity Education and Programs at Virginia Tech.

February 20, 9:00 – 10:15 a.m.
Demystifying the Familiar Stranger: Poison Ivy

Poison ivy is perhaps the most well-known native noxious plants (“leaves of three, let it be”), yet there is an astonishing dearth of specific scientific knowledge about poison ivy physiology and ecology. This talk will describe ongoing poison ivy research in the Jelesko lab about new insights into poison ivy ecology, including where it prefers to grow and what animals and microbes interact with poison ivy. The talk will also describe new opportunities to understand poison ivy metabolism and evolution from the recently sequenced poison ivy genome.

John Jelesko is Associate Professor of Plant Pathology, Physiology, and Weed Science at Virginia Tech.

Inventing Loreta Velasquez: Confederate Soldier Impersonator, Media Celebrity and Con Artist

Scores of women successfully posed as men in order to serve as soldiers during the Civil War, and for a host of motives. Most were discovered sooner or later, given the difficulty of successfully maintaining the masquerade. But there was one who never intended to fool anyone, who repeatedly called attention to herself, and for whom posing as a Confederate soldier was just the first act in a lifetime as a charlatan and pioneering female con artist. We don’t even know her actual name, but the story of her real life is more incredible than any of the fictions she invented.

Jack Davis is the former director of Virginia Tech’s Center for Civil War Studies and is the author of more than 50 books, most recently Crucible of Command and Inventing Loreta Velasquez. He is the only four-time winner of the Jefferson Davis Award of the Museum of the Confederacy for works on the Civil War and Confederacy.
February 27, 9:00 – 10:15 a.m.
Fire Up the 611!

The return of the Norfolk and Western Railway’s J class steam locomotive to operational status in 2015 was the result of a remarkable collaboration. Built in Roanoke in 1950, the 611 is a beautiful and powerful passenger steam engine that symbolizes the city’s rich railroad history. Come hear the story of the return of the 611 as well as more about her history.

Bev Fitzpatrick recently retired as Executive Director of the Virginia Museum of Transportation.

The great influenza epidemic of 1918 was the most notorious pandemic in modern history, killing between 40 and 100 million people, mainly in the U.S. and Europe. Maps as Metaphor in Political Cartoons

Since the beginnings of political cartooning, cartoonists have used maps as a source for metaphors. This course explores how cartoonists from around the globe have turned simple maps into metaphors that transform them into significant political and ideological symbols and statements.

Each of the six sessions will focus on a continent (e.g., Africa), a nation or state (e.g., Afghanistan, Virginia), or an issue (hunger, political behavior, or political personalities). Examples come from around the globe and cover topics as diverse as hunger, war, national pride, and yes, even building walls. Participants will create their own cartoons using maps as metaphor.

INSTRUCTOR

Edd Sewell is Associate Professor Emeritus in the Department of Communication at Virginia Tech. His teaching areas were visual media and international communication, and his research foci were visual humor, political cartoons, and GLBT diversity.

TED Talks

TED talks are short, well-prepared, understandable presentations by remarkable, innovative, articulate persons on over 2,500 topics in almost every area of life. We’ll watch and discuss three different talks in each class session, chosen initially by the instructor and then by volunteer class members who select a TED talk of interest and then initiate discussion. This is a participation class, drawing on the life experiences, knowledge, interests, and expertise of participants in the class. TED talks are an exceptional way to broaden your exposure to ideas and initiatives you may never have considered before, and to join others in lively conversation.

Want to see what kinds of talks we might choose? Visit www.TED.com. TED talks are designed to be "ideas worth spreading."

INSTRUCTOR

Dean Spader is Professor Emeritus at the University of South Dakota. He led TED Talks and other LLI classes for five years before moving to Blacksburg. His teaching and research interests have been justice/ethics issues, law, and dispute resolution.

Great Decisions
Presented in partnership with the League of Women Voters of Montgomery County

Great Decisions is a community discussion program on world affairs. The Foreign Policy Association develops background information and policy options for eight critical issues facing America and provides text and videos for discussion groups across the country. Participants prepare for class by reading a 10-page overview for each topic in a Briefing Book. Each group meeting begins with a 30-minute video with information on the issues. A local resource person who is expert on the week’s topic provides additional information and guides discussion.

China and America: The New Geopolitical Equation
In the last 15 years, China has implemented a wide-ranging strategy of economic outreach and expansion of all its national capacities, including military and diplomatic capacities. Where the United States has taken a step back from multilateral trade agreements and discarded the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), China has made inroads through efforts like the Belt and Road Initiative and the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB). This session explores the leadership and political conditions in each society that contribute to Sino-American tensions.

South Africa’s Fragile Democracy
The African National Congress (ANC) party has governed South Africa since the end of apartheid in 1994. But the party today suffers from popular frustration over official corruption and economic stagnation. It faces growing threats from both left and right opposition parties, even as intraparty divisions surface. Given America’s history of opportunistic engagement with Africa, there are few prospects for a closer relationship between the two countries. Meanwhile, a weaker ANC could lead to political fragmentation in this relatively new democracy.

Media and Foreign Policy
State and non-state actors today must maneuver a complex and rapidly evolving media landscape. Conventional journalism now competes with user-generated content. Official channels of communication can be circumvented through social media. Foreign policy is tweeted from the White House and “fake news” has entered the zeitgeist. Cyberwarfare, hacking, and misinformation pose security threats. This session explores how actors use media to pursue and defend their interests in the international arena and the implications for U.S. policy.

The Waning of Pax Americana?
During Donald Trump’s presidency, the U.S. has begun a shift away from Pax Americana, the liberal international order established in the wake of World War II. Since 1945, Pax Americana has promised peaceful international relations and an open economy, buttressed by U.S. military power. In championing “America First” isolationism and protectionism, President Trump has shifted the political mood toward selective U.S. engagement, where foreign commitments are limited to areas of vital U.S. interest and economic nationalism is the order of the day. Geopolitical allies and challengers alike are paying close attention.
U.S. Global Engagement and the Military
The global power balance is rapidly evolving, leaving the United States at a turning point with respect to its level of engagement and the role of its military. Some argue for an “America First” paradigm, with a large military to ensure security, while others call for a more assertive posture overseas. Some advocate for a restoration of American multilateral leadership and a strengthened role for diplomacy. Still others envision a restrained U.S. role, involving a more limited military. Shaping the military function in today’s international order and balancing this with diplomatic and foreign assistance is a critical leadership challenge.

Turkey: Partner in Crisis
Of all NATO allies, Turkey represents the most daunting challenge for the Trump administration. In the wake of a failed military coup in July 2016, the autocratic trend in Ankara took a turn for the worse. One year on, an overwhelming majority of the population considers the United States to be their country’s greatest security threat. In this age of a worsening “clash of civilizations” between Islam and the West, even more important than its place on the map is what Turkey symbolically represents as the most institutionally Westernized Muslim country in the world.

Ikebana Flower Arranging—Level 2

Prerequisite: completion of Ikebana Flower Arranging—Level 1 in Spring or Fall 2017.

In this class, students will continue to learn the various styles of Japanese flower arranging. The first class will review the upright style from Level 1 and introduce the upright variation style. During the other classes student will be introduced to, and practice, variations of Slanting Styles 1 and 2. One of the five classes will focus on building skills for nageire supports, to include using modern and traditional materials. At this level, students will have the opportunity to try new floral materials.

SUPPLIES
Students should bring their containers and kenzan from the earlier class plus scissors and water pitcher. They will bring their own floral materials for arranging except for the first class.

Global Health: Progress and Challenges
The collective action of countries, communities, and organizations over the last 30 years has literally saved millions of lives around the world. Yet terrible inequalities in health and wellbeing persist. The world now faces a mix of old and new health challenges, including the preventable deaths of mothers and children, continuing epidemics of infectious diseases, and rising rates of chronic disease. We also remain vulnerable to the emergence of new and deadly pandemics. The next several decades will be just as important—if not more so—than the last in determining wellbeing across nations.

RECOMMENDED READING
The Foreign Policy Association Great Decisions Briefing Book 2018 is available from Volume II Bookstore; it is also available in a Kindle edition at amazon.com. A copy of the print version is available at Blacksburg Public Library for in-library use.
Novels of Toni Morrison

This course will continue the discussion about Toni Morrison’s fiction that we started in spring 2017, though having been a part of that class is not a requirement. We will focus on two novels that treat, among other themes, romantic love. Tar Baby depicts two of Morrison’s most passionate young lovers, Jadine and Son, who are attracted to each other by their differences, but ultimately find those differences an insurmountable obstacle. Tar Baby also includes, for the first time in Morrison’s fiction, white characters who are central to the plot and themes of the novel. Jazz has at its center a pair of middle-aged lovers who have migrated from Virginia to New York City in 1906 and, ten years later, find themselves haunted by the past they thought they had fled. Although the word “jazz” is never used in the novel, that music is central to the novel’s form and themes.

Morrison has stated that she always writes about “how people relate to one another and miss it or hang on to it . . . or are tenacious about love. About love and how to survive—not to make a living—but how to survive whole in a world where we are all of us, in some measure, victims of something.” The novels we will read illustrate the difficulty human beings have in recognizing love and trying not to throw it away.

REQUIRED READING

Tar Baby
Jazz

Students should purchase the two novels (any edition) from Amazon, B&N, or the bookseller of their choice before classes begin. We will start with Tar Baby.

Grilling a 5-Course Meal

Fire makes food taste good. Cooking outdoors is communal, cathartic, and daring. Grilling is the human attempt to control the most destructive force in nature and to coax it to fulfill our need for nourishment and weekend fun. Learning to grill meat is almost commonplace; however, you can grill vegetables, salads, pizza, and even desserts with ease and flair. This course will convert novice outdoor cooks into a seasoned chefs-of-the-flame.

INSTRUCTOR

Phillip McManus has been a culinary school instructor for 15 years. He is a Certified Executive Pastry Chef and a Certified Chocolate Evaluator. His catering experience includes grilling 5-course dinners for bachelor parties and groom’s dinners.
Drawing

Drawing can be fun and can be learned: it is a learned skill. In this course, participants will learn how to draw in pencil using various drawing techniques including hatching/cross-hatching, and the classical Chiaroscuro method with an emphasis on proportion and linear perspectives.

SUPPLIES
Students will need an 11 x 14 tabletop easel (usually $15–25); sketchpad (minimum 24 sheets); eraser, pencil sharpener, and ruler. The total cost for participant supplies might be $50–60.

Making a Murderer: Examining Justice and the Media

Making a Murderer was an instant sensation on Netflix. This documentary examines the wrongful conviction of Steven Avery, who served 18 years in prison for a crime he did not commit. Two years after his release from prison, he is tried for a murder amid allegations from his defense team that the police framed him. Making a Murderer consists of 10 one-hour episodes; each class will discuss two episodes. Together we'll consider the role of the police in investigating crimes and of the defense counsel in criminal cases, prosecutorial ethics, appearances of impropriety, and media influence in shaping public perceptions of justice. In the last class, we'll draw some lessons learned about the American system of justice based on this important case.

Students must have access to Netflix, but are encouraged NOT to do other reading or research on the case so that they come to our discussions with their own observations based on the documentary viewing only.
Exploring Oil Painting

- Color mixing/temperatures/relationships
- Tonal value/contrast/edges

Confederate Monuments:
What’s Their Story, and What Do We Do about Them?

We will focus on a few significant Confederate monuments, especially the Lee and Jackson monuments in Charlottesville, which illustrate the issues entangling these potent, public symbols. We will consider three questions: What are the “origin stories” of these works? What values do we think they represent—past and present? What are the options for dealing with them?

My approach will be as an essayist, rather than as a lecturer—that is, as someone exploring the subject, rather than as someone dispensing information. The purpose overall is light, rather than heat. I anticipate spirited discussion and look forward to our essay together.

CLASS SESSIONS

1. Events of April 11 – 12 in Charlottesville, VA: church services, “Alt-Right” rally in Emancipation Park: multiple groups, with disparate aims and beliefs; “First Amendment Rights” issues

2. Expanding our view: the role and prominence of national monuments; the importance of “myth-making” in forming a sense of national pride

3. Who was Robert E. Lee? The man versus the myth; the “origin story” of the Lee statue in Charlottesville; the subtle, pervasive influence of racism in American and Virginian history

4. What do we do about these monuments? Options: Leave them be; leave them be and ‘contextualize’ them; move them to a museum or cemetery; destroy them

INSTRUCTOR

Lawrence Bechtel is the sculptor of Addison Caldwell on the Virginia Tech campus, among other public works. He was an English Instructor, and then Recycling Coordinator at VT, before retiring in 2009. He is presently working on a historical novel, Angels Shall Not Keep Me, about a slave of Thomas Jefferson.
Watercolor: Passionate Involvement

Originality is being true to oneself. In watercolor painting this means allowing one’s inner voice to express itself through color, shape, form, and value. Sometimes this is easy. Sometimes mastery of drawing and technical skill are enough.

But sometimes we need more, a focus, a directive to take our paintings to the next level. One important element is the artist’s passionate involvement with the subject.

In this class I will attempt to help each artist bring something more to the viewer as we explore old as well as new subject matter.

If possible we will take advantage of painting plein air. If time allows, each class will include exhibit and critique. As much as possible, I will design a curriculum that suits the needs of each individual painter.

Possible explorations
- Interiors
- Animals
- City Scenes
- Machines
- Portraits
- Water
- Reflective Surfaces
- Still Life
- Flowers
- Figures
- Abstracts
- Landscapes

A list of supplies will be distributed in advance or at the first class meeting.

Intermediate Memoir and Essay Writing

Revision is the basis of literary art—it’s where what people call “writing” (quality prose) happens. In this class, students will read innovative and award-winning essays, revise their own and compose new work, and share their writing with classmates. The instructor will provide exercises to stretch your range and offer ideas for developing your own self-editing process. Based on the richly collaborative workshop model—receiving peers’ insights and commenting helpfully in turn—the class makes learning less narrowly instructor-based and brings more brainpower to each essay.

This intermediate workshop is aimed at students who have taken previous LLI personal nonfiction seminars, or other writing classes, or who have been studying and writing on their own and hope to take their work to the next level. No permission is necessary, however. Enthusiasm is the core requirement!

TOPICS

- Reviewing how to use diverse rhetorical moves to please sophisticated readers
- Strategies for developing an enhanced self-editing process
- Reading others’ work with insight and giving helpful notes

Preparing Chinese Dim Sum

Dim Sum is the food of Chinese Tea House lunches. The literal translation of Dim Sum is “dot heart” but the poetic meaning is “heart’s delight.” Dim Sum dishes are small items, mostly deep-fried, baked or steamed (but not restricted to these techniques); they are often served with sauces. In a restaurant setting, servers circulate with carts of small plates of single types of items of many sorts. Your bill depends on the number and size of the plates that your table takes.

We will make a variety of dim sum dishes such as dumplings or pot stickers, steamed buns and deep-fried tidbits (e.g. won tons), a total of about 10 dishes. Some can be made ahead. Recipes will be provided. We’ll end the event with a delicious dim sum lunch.

Thinking Inside the Box: Using Modern Tools to Understand Jamestown’s Past

In anticipation of the 400th anniversary of the landing at Jamestown, the National Park Service and Preservation Virginia launched an extensive archaeological assessment and research project to address the under-explored 17th century. Preservation Virginia initiated its Jamestown Rediscovery® project to search for the original 1607 fort, long thought lost to the James River.

Since 2010, the Jamestown Rediscovery team has discovered three of the top ten archaeology finds in the world as defined by Archaeology Magazine. These finds – evidence of cannibalism, the first protestant church, and four burials of the “founding fathers” of the colony – were all located within fifty feet of each other in the center of the 1607 James Fort.

This talk will highlight the advanced techniques, including digital modeling, radiographic, and isotopic information that aided in the identification and understanding of James Fort’s colonists and their tumultuous early years.

Hard-hitting Research That Has Revolutionized the Sports Helmet Industry

It kicked off with little more than two self-described sports nuts who had an idea, $50,000 in good-faith cash, and a cooperative future hall-of-fame college football coach. Fourteen years later, Virginia Tech research has revolutionized the sports helmet industry and is fostering safer athletic practice and coaching techniques to reduce head-related injuries, especially concussions.

Concussions and helmet safety weren’t even on the research radar when Stefan Duma and Virginia Tech football team physician Gunnar Brolinson first hatched a plan to attach sensors to the heads of Virginia Tech football players to monitor the hits they took during practice and games.

Even as recently as the early 2000s, many considered concussion a “junk diagnosis.” Today, however, multiple partners from Blacksburg to Roanoke and across the nation are focused on improving the diagnosis and treatment of concussions and mild traumatic brain injuries in youth and adults in sports ranging from football to men’s and women’s soccer.

Continued Virginia Tech helmet testing is expected to result in the first-ever safety ratings for headgear in every helmeted sport around the globe. (This description is adapted from an article by Richard Lovegrove, Virginia Tech Magazine, Winter 2016-17; see the full article at http://www.vtmag.vt.edu/winter17/helmet-research.html)
Genetic Testing: Benefits and Burdens

We are entering the new world of 21st century medicine – a world in which genetic testing will be a major tool at every stage in the life cycle. But genetic testing also presents us – as individuals and citizens – with some new and troubling issues. Through small-group discussion of real-life case studies, this session will explore the issues posed by genetic testing and seek ways to address them. Case studies will include prenatal testing, childhood testing, family and privacy concerns, and testing of currently healthy individuals to estimate their genetic risk for developing late-onset disorders such as breast cancer and Alzheimer’s disease.

Opioid Epidemic? What Are the Facts?

If America is facing an “opioid epidemic,” why isn’t evidence-based emergency, urgent, and routine medical care for opioid use disorder available in our town? Ask that question of lawmakers, judges, policymakers, public officials, journalists, treatment professionals, and society at large, and watch the spluttering begin. For no other health care condition is belief, opinion, and myth accepted as the standard of care. This presentation focuses on the latest addiction research, with a focus on opioid use disorder, challenging what society has to say about addicts with the available science.

Craig County Barn Quilts for Books

Since 2014 Martha Dillard, a regional artist from Craig County, has painted over 110 richly patterned quilt squares, many with their own story of history surrounding the design choice. Approximately 40 are installed on buildings around Craig County. Other commissioned quilt squares are installed in Montgomery County and seven other states. Each square raised money for the volunteer-supported Craig County Public Library.

LLI is hosting two separate special events to highlight this unique project 1) to introduce the artist and her work, and 2) to tour Craig County to see examples of barn quilts installed on buildings and barns and to have lunch at the historic Old Brick Hotel. Register for one or both events. Space on the bus tour is limited to 23 and requires payment to Blacksburg Parks and Recreation Department. (See the next page for details.)

Watch for a new class to try painting your own barn quilt in Fall 2018!
Meet the Artist behind Barn Quilts for Books

Artist Martha Dillard will provide some history on the Barn Quilts for Books project in Craig County that was featured in The Roanoke Times. She’ll show images of some of the colorful barn quilts she has painted, and share stories of their design.

Bus Tour of Craig County Barn Quilts and Lunch at the Old Brick Hotel

We’ll travel to nearby beautiful Craig County by bus provided by Blacksburg Parks and Recreation and visit several examples of barn quilt art installed on barns and buildings. We will tour the three-story Old Brick Hotel in New Castle that was built in the 1840s and have a family-style luncheon presented by the Craig County Historical Society. The library and Emporium, a delightful shop in an historic building, are also worth a visit.

This is a rain or shine event.

In addition to registering with LLI on the special event form in the catalog, you will need to pay by credit card for the bus tour through the Blacksburg Parks and Recreation Department; please call Joy Herbert at 540-443-1142.
Red Sun Farms and Pulaski Grow Field Trip

Calling all locavores! In this age of knowing where and how your food is produced, the New River Valley has many regional resources. Red Sun Farms in Dublin is the largest fully integrated high-tech greenhouse in North America to own and operate farms in all three NAFTA countries: Canada, Mexico, and the United States. The operating philosophy of “From Our Seeds to Your Plate” closes the gap between grower, retailer, and consumer. Incorporating non-GMO seeds, year-round growing, and multiple distribution centers, Red Sun is able to minimize distance and time to deliver fresh, healthful produce. The acres under roof and the technical equipment for this huge operation will interest LLI members from both business and gardening points of view.

Lunch will be served at the Blue Door Restaurant at the Draper Mercantile. As a historic site and long-standing local tradition, the Draper Mercantile has been a gathering place for the community for over 125 years.

After lunch, we’ll get a different take on fresh food at the smaller aquaponic operation, Pulaski Grow, in Draper. This business provides locally grown food to the community while preparing youth for the business world through intensive, hands-on job training. Aquaponics is a dual system that uses the water from raising fish to fertilize vegetables grown in a hydroponics structure. Outdoor operations are also available in the summer. All food produced is organic.

Pulaski Grow operates as a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) program. Members buy a share or half-share at the beginning of the quarter and then pick up their produce once a week.

Van transportation will be provided. Wear casual clothes and comfortable shoes. You’ll be provided with protective clothing at Red Sun Farms – to protect the plants and the greenhouse environment, not your clothes!
